

All About Giant Pandas!

Pandas have white and black fur. They live in bamboo forests in China. They eat mostly bamboo. Most of their day is spent looking for and eating bamboo. Since they eat this bamboo, they must have very sharp teeth with a strong bite.

When they are not eating bamboo, their time is spent sleeping. They love to climb trees and swim. They move very slow. They do this to save energy. Baby pandas are called cubs, and the mothers protect their cubs for 3 years.

Pandas are very gentle and cute animals. They are not aggressive, but approaching a wild giant panda is dangerous considering they are protective over their cubs and their strong bite. Although they spend most of their time sleeping and eating, they are still smart animals.